THE CAPSTONE PROJECT IN DETAILS

Participating in the TCLP has been my life dream since I heard about the program from a close friend.I kept applying for this program for more than a decade. Every time I get a rejection email saying that there are a lot of applicants who are better than me,but I never lost hope that one day I will be a TCLP participant.I kept working with my students,trying new methods and experimenting .I became more connected to the social specialists in my school and initiated a handful of projects in collaboration with them.That was for me and my students to enjoy learning and trying to make the learning process a hands on experience as much as we can.I enjoyed teaching and my students enjoyed learning .I learnt a lot from them,but still something is missing ,that was the TCLP experience.Sorry for being redundant ,but I really can't conceal my pride and happiness in participating in this program.When I joined Lavelle Preparatory Charter School,I was shocked to know that it has been a host school for four years,yet there is no set curriculum nor repertoire of previous lessons prepared by TCLP previous participant,so I determined to make it easier for the next year TCLP participant by making my capstone project as a curriculum built on LOTE accompanied by a package of google slides for all the lessons delivered Plus a package of technological projects to leverage teaching with technology,this is for the language aspect.But ,what about the culture aspect which is the other facet of the TCLP and which I am smitten with it ? I also provided the school with google slides for the presentations about culture,ideas bank for more presentations as well as a series of video interviews the Arab teachers in the school to be a guide to the next year TCLP teacher.Also I have provided the school with a series of TPRS lessons suitable for Arabic 3 students who are preparing to pass the REGENTS EXAMINATION in Arabic.At the end of the day,I do not assume that this is the best curriculum or perspective but at least it is a beginning and the next year teacher can modulate ,add and even change everything and start from scratch if s/he likes. All the best.
